TO RACE ALTERNATE DAYS

This Plan Will Be Fair to Both the Local Clubs.

ROSS AND ENGEMAN AGREEABLE

Residents of Washington and Ivy City Jockey Clubs Favor a Joint Spring Meeting, and Such May Be Held-Engeman Cherishes No Resentment Against Local Club Officials.

If President Ross, of the Washington Jockey Club, and Engeman, of the Ivy City Jockey Club, have their way there will be cordial relations from this time out existing between a vengeance this Spring, and the two organizations. All the differences of the past can easily be healed if the executive committee of the Washington Jockey Club listen to the counsel of President Ross. The money's worth or your money race track till is expected to be called up and passed in the Senate to-day, and then it will go to the House, where it is hoped but little delay will be experienced in its passage. Under the provisions of the bill each track will be allowed eighteen days' racing in the Spring and a like time in the Fall.

As the Brooklyn jockey club's meeting will commence May 15, there will not be sufficient time before then for both the local meetings to be held. Right here there is promise of a eiash, as each club naturally wants a clear field without any competition. President Ross said yesterday he would like the Benning meeting to open April 23 and race until May 13, but he admitted Ivy City could not get in its eighteen days between the bill becoming a eighteen days between the but becoming a law and April 23.

He expressed a desire for harmony between the two organizations, and said he was per-fectly willing to meet George Engeman half way in arranging dates. It was suggested that the best way out of the dilemma was racing alternate days at Benning and Ivy City, and be readily agreed to the idea. "It will be fair to both tracks," he added, "and achieve will have cause to complain. I am meither will have cause to complain. I am heartly in favor of the scheme and believe it would be successful."

would be succession.

George H. Engeman, who is stopping at the Oxford, was seen last evening and stated he was prepared to treat the Henning people with the utmost fairness. When told of Mr. Hoss satisfaction with alternate day rucing he said, "the very best plan possible. I will lloss' satisfaction with alternate day racing he said, "the very best plan possible. I will agree, and you may state it is perfectly satis-factory to me. By such an arrangement the horsemen and bookmakers would be pleased, as there is but little distance between the tracks, and no difficulty would be experi-enced for the transfer of the horses from one tracks, and no difficulty would be experienced for the transfer of the horses from one pince to the other.

During December when District Attorney Birney shut off the Ivy City meeting, Mr. Engeman was very wrathy and had the impression that Mr. Birney's action was more or less influenced by officials of the Washington Jockey Club. He at that time declared his determination to carry the war into Africa by racing in opposition to Benning in the Spring, but this feeling has pussed away, and Mr. Engeman said last evening he wanted pence as such would be for the best interests of all parties, "There would be a loss for both sides," he aidded, "if there was a conflict and its pretty safe that we will shape matters up in a satisfactory way."

Secretary Draney said yestorday he had applications for all the vacant stables at Benning, and it would be necessary to creek additional accommodations for at least 100 horses. Charley Primrose, who is Mr. Engeman's right hand man, declared there would be fully 800 horses at the two tracks within the next two weeks if the race bill becomes a law. "We will erect more stables at Ivy City." he said: "and there will be becomes a law. "We will erect more stables at Ivy City." he said, "and there will be more bookmakers here than ever before, no matter whether the racing runs into the Brooklyn meeting or not there will be plenty of sport here."

James F. Caldwell, the well-known starter, has been emgaged by Mr. Engeman, and will handle the flag both at Ivy City and Long Beach. The Benning people have not yet decided who will start at their track. C. H. Pettingill, who is doing excellent work at New Orleans, is wanted, but is said he has already agreed to officiate at Memphis and Nashville after the close at the Crescent city on April 3. Tom Flynn, the ex-speaker of the New Jersey legislature and former starter at Gloucester, is disengaged and can be secured.

Centaur, the turf writer in the New York Commercial Advertiser, says of the racing prospects in this city:

Opinions seem to be unanimous that the amended bill allowing both Benning and Ivy City to race for a limited period will pass without opposition practically, and that President Clevelland will sign the bill prompty. If the bill becomes a law Washington will have Spring racing such as it never had before, as most of the big Eastern stables will sain their strings to the city on the Potamae. There will be considerable difficulty to secure stable room. Even now at Benning and Ivy City nearly every stall is either occupied or bespoken. Charade, who has been wintering at Washington is reported as looking and moving wonderfully well, and is sure to receive considerable support in the winter books about the Brooklyn liandicap from the local talent. He always was at his best in the Spring, and this year he is even more forward than ever he was at the same period in former years. Mr. Jones, his renial owner, says that he can find no fault with his condition. Personally, however, I would incline to the opinion that Charade is not a good house to back for the event, as he has always shown a lack of ability to quite stay a mile and a furling is his favorite distance, and when just right there are not five older horses in the country that can beat him at any sort of a moderate weight.

The Prospect of an early opening at Washington is stimulating all trainers in this vicinity. The Coney Island boulevard and the Brookiyn jockey club's track are literally alive with horses every morning, and by next week many of the more advanced ones will be asked to go beyond the conventional two-minute city, and the goods proved the conventional two-minute city, and the goods and the goods of the conventional two-minute city, and the good of the conventional Doubt About the President's Action Made the Market Uncertain.

INDUSTRIALS LOST ACTIVITY

London Wants to Buy, but She Wants to Buy Cheaper than the Present Range-Closing Was Dull and Irregular, with a Slight Rally from the Lowest Prices.

New York, March 29,-The opening of today's market was slightly irregular, but in the main strong. London was trading at advances ranging from 16 to 16 per cent., and had a liberal supply of orders on this side, both for stocks and bonds. The bulk of these orders were limited to prices a shade under our market, and consequently contributed a little to the local speculation. The feeling abroad is so decidedly in favor of a boom in stock values that foreign houses in cline to the belief that the impatience of London speculators will result in a bull campaign engineered from that side. Traders were inclined to work for a reaction during the first half of the session, and were assisted in their efforts by a liberal supply of floating stock pressing for sale.

The veto message, while practically assured for several days past, was unsatisfactory, because the particular bill and not the principle involved was the subject of the President's involved was the subject of the President's disapproval. It had been hoped that the administration would so effectually condemn all attempts to inflate the national currency that the silver element in both houses would see the hopelessness of future projects of this character. As it is, however, there can be little doubt that a modified bill covering the same subject will be introduced in Congress.

same subject will be introduced in Congress, and probably, under increased pressure, meet with better success than its predecessor.

There is also some apprehension felt at the possibility of a free-coinage clause being grafted into the tariff bill, the fate of which would be extremely doubtful. Should the tariff bill be vetoed, as the only means of thwarting the silver provision, party pledges would be broken and political incompatibility ensue. This, from a purely political standpoint, would not be a wise step, but standpoint, would not be a wise step, but stocks would immediately aftest the value of such action by liberal additions to prevailing quotations. The industrials would profit most by this latter action, and it is estimated that the silver people can do them no greater favor than by insisting on the carrying out of Municipal and Federal Obligations. In an opinion rendered yesterday in the ase of the Marine hospital at Detroit, Mich., Solicitor Reeve, of the Treasury Depart ment, holds that the streets and sidewaiks of a city are under the control of the municipal-ity, and that the United States cannot legally be held liable for improvements made in streets and sidewalks contiguous to government property.
